

Matt Golden
CEO & Founder

Matt is committed to living sustainably in both his personal and business life. Prior to founding Sustainable Spaces, Matt worked as an Energy Consultant helping homeowners and businesses develop solar power systems. He soon realized that he was offering only a point solution and could not really address most homeowner's desire to make their homes and lives more sustainable.

Matt developed the concept for Sustainable Spaces to meet this market demand by providing a single full-service resource and a brand homeowners can trust to help them improve the comfort, health, and efficiency of their home.

Matt speaks extensively on building science and integrated green design to groups such as the AIA (American Institute of Architects), West Coast Green, Build it Green and others. Matt has authored a number of articles on Home Energy Magazine, and has been featured in the USA Today, SF Chronicle, KQED Radio, and the Ellen Degeneres Show.

Matt has extensive experience working in fast paced start-up environments. Matt previously founded and operated Travelkey Inc., a venture backed leisure travel technology company.

Matt holds a bachelors degree in foreign relations from Georgetown University, and has traveled much of the world and America by bike, bus, train, plane, and foot.
